DIRECTIONS FOR USE.

The bottles, when filled to the shoulder with milk or a mixture in required proportions, should be placed into the round cruet, then cover the mouth of each with an india-rubber disc, dropping a metal cap on the neck. Place cruet and bottles into the metal boiler, and pour in about a quart of water and cover tightly with the lid. Then place on the fire, gas ring or spirit stove and allow the water to boil for five minutes, the steam escaping round the edge of the lid. When sufficiently cool, remove cruet and bottles and place in the wooden stand—the india-rubber discs are sucked in by atmospheric pressure in cooling, and the bottles are thus hermetically sealed.

To open the bottles, raise the edge of the disc, which will then easily come off; this should be done when the food is of the right temperature and just before giving it to the child. Put a teat on, and the bottle is ready for use.

Food left in the bottle should not be used again.

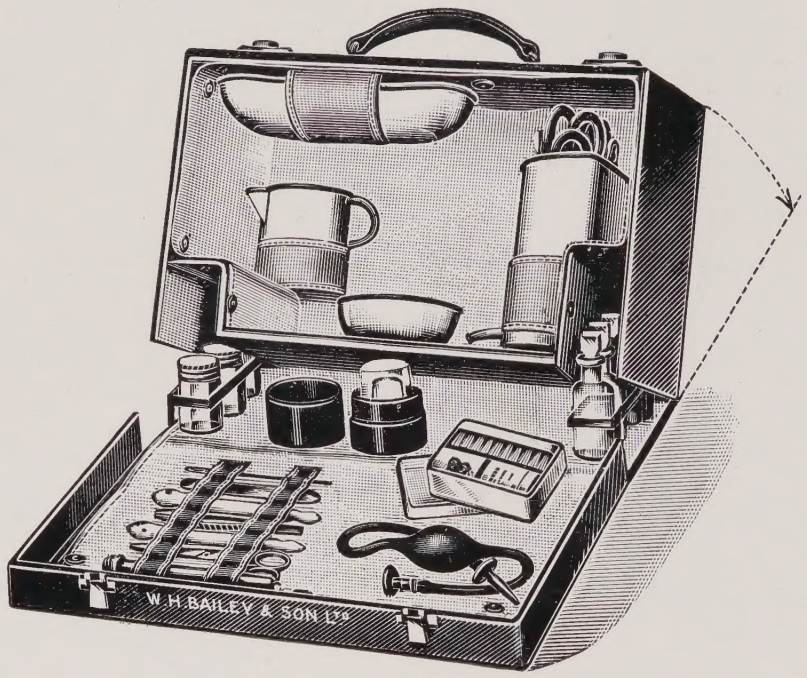
THE "PERFECTION" MIDWIFERY CASE.

Registered.

BLACK OR BROWN, COWHIDE OR REXINE.



The case is so constructed as to allow of the front falling down to form a table. The back section to hold large vessels is hinged to drop back, leaving the two racks holding bottles and pots in a perfectly upright position with no fear of the contents being spilt. When the case is closed breakages cannot occur to the bottles and pots, as each rack is protected by a specially devised compartment.
